CST0007 - Sonia Kovalevsky Mathematics Day for Girls

Course Description

The program brings to the main campus 60 to 75 local middle school girls to learn about the field of mathematics and possible career paths. Sonia Kovalevsky Day is about exposure and opportunity, and it epitomizes the principle that equal opportunity to study mathematics yields similar performances of girls and boys. The program focuses on providing middle school women participants with competent and engaging mathematical instruction intertwined with strong mentorship by Temple undergraduate and graduate women students in STEM disciplines who are in a position of scientific leadership at the college level. The long-term goal of the Sonia Kovalevsky Mathematics Day program is to impact the way young women view mathematics as a discipline while strengthening their mathematical skills. Each year the program accomplishes the following:

- Encourages middle school girls to study mathematics and to consider mathematics-related careers.
- Creates a mentoring network involving middle school girls, parents, teachers, women faculty, and graduate and undergraduate students interested in mathematics in the greater Philadelphia area.
- Celebrates the accomplishments of women in mathematics.
- Supports the Temple undergraduate and graduate students involved in the organization of the program to become more marketable and overall to become well rounded professionals.
- Involves middle school students in local, national and international mathematics competitions.
- Creates the larger sense of a national mathematical community through accessible mathematics lectures given by women

Hi, Minnie

Home
 Temple University's pre-college and summer camp programs (the "Programs") will be delivered online in the summer of 2020. In order to offer the Programs, Temple collects certain information about users. The information that Temple collects of users includes name, grade, email address, phone number, and home address. In addition, the Programs use certain third-party educational web-based services and applications, including but not limited to Zoom (live web conferencing), Canvas (learning management system), and G Suite (Google). By registering for the Programs you give permission to your Student to use third-party applications for the purpose of participating in the Temple University Program, and you expressly consent, on behalf of your Student, to such third-party privacy policies and agree to be bound by their terms of use. You acknowledge that if the Program utilizes live Zoom meetings to deliver instruction, then your child may be seen and heard on a webcam over the internet. You acknowledge and agree that Zoom meetings and other technology made available by Temple for the Program are to be used solely for the purpose of accessing the Program, and for no other purpose, and you agree to provide a level of supervision and assistance to your student appropriate for their age and ability. Please enter your initials to indicate that you understand and consent to permission for online education for the Student. *

Third-Party Websites and Resources
 In addition, during the course of the Programs, your Student may also be referred by their course instructors to links to other websites that are operated by third parties, such as, for example, Youtube. Temple does NOT operate or control such third-party websites in any way, and makes no representations or warranties related thereto. Access of such websites is at the user's own risk. These third-party websites may collect additional information about users for the purpose of providing the services. You and your Student's use of these third-party services and applications is subject to those third parties' privacy policies and other terms and conditions of use. You acknowledge that you retain ultimate control and responsibility for any content that your minor Student may access over the internet, and the risks associated therewith.

Please enter your initials to indicate that you understand and consent to the use of third-party websites and resources for the Student. *

Technology and Software Usage
 You understand that your Student's participation in the Programs and use of any technology or software made available by Temple is subject to Temple's Technology and Software Usage Policy, located at https://secretary.temple.edu/sites/secretary/files/pol/cas_04.71.11.pdf. You shall ensure that your Student will act in good faith to preserve the integrity of their Temple online accounts. They will not disclose their password to others, allow others to use their account, access or attempt to access technology resources for which they are not authorized, or use their Temple online accounts for illegal, nuisance, or otherwise inappropriate behavior. You acknowledge and agree that failure to comply with the Technology Software and Usage Policy may result in your Student being removed from the Program.

I have reviewed the Technology and Software Usage Policy and affirm that my Student will comply. *

Additional Technology Policies
 In order to use Temple University's technology resources, Students must abide by all other technology policies and guidelines available at <https://its.temple.edu/tech-policies>.

I have reviewed these policies and affirm that my Student will comply. I understand that failure to comply with Temple's technology policies may result in my Student being removed from the Program. *

Online Conduct
Online Conduct
 Students are expected to be respectful of one another and the instructor in online discussions. The goal is to foster a safe learning environment where students feel comfortable in discussing concepts and in applying them in class. Our differences, some of which are outlined in the University's nondiscrimination statement, available at https://secretary.temple.edu/sites/secretary/files/pol/cas_04.81.11.pdf, will add richness to this learning experience. Students should treat their classmates and instructor with respect in all communication, class activities, and meetings.

Please enter your initials to indicate that you understand and agree to the online conduct policies for the Student. *

Additional Online Conduct Policies
 Students attending online Programs are expected to behave in the same manner as if they were in a live classroom. Students are expected to not disrupt class through visuals or verbal outbursts, such as but not limited to, conversations with other people in the room, engaging in inappropriate behavior while in class or distracting the class in any other way. In addition, students should refrain from doing something in their online class that they would not do in a live classroom. You understand that if your Student's behavior is disruptive to the class, your Student may be asked to leave the online classroom, and may be removed from the Program.

Please enter your initials to indicate that you understand and agree to the additional online conduct policies for the Student. *
